I was one of the lucky ones, young, healthy and no babies. After four years as a driver with the A.T.S. I finished my tour of duty in Germany and was discharged. After a short while a message arrived from the Canadian Government - I could leave for Canada in 48 hours. What a rush. I shared a cabin with a young woman who was travelling with 6 month old twins. I helped carry them around the ship and to the dining room. I saw my husband waiting at Pier 21 (although he looked different in "civvies." We drove to Moncton where I went to Eaton's to buy some cool clothing - then on to Fredericton. It was very hot! I love Canada and have never been sorry that I came here to live.
